

Natural Selectionitis

David Lightfoot

In this paper I will argue that there has been too much reliance on very speculative appeals to natural selection in discussion of the evolution of the language faculty. I will talk about the form of UG and how some aspects may have been shaped by forces other than natural selection.